

Problem Statement

New students around campus are frustrated because they feel like they cannot find people they connect with. Our solution should provide users with ways to meet new people that can be longtime friends.

Who

First-year student or transfer students on campus are experiencing this problem.

What

The problem is making friends, especially for students who are not from this area. The campus is excessively big and overwhelming for most to meet new people that they are comfortable with.

Where

College campuses, but in this case, specifically the University of South Carolina.

Why

Coming to a new place without people to surround yourself and socialize with can take a toll on your mental health and well-being. It would be beneficial to students all over if they had an easier way to connect with people who have similar interests.